

OnceHub for G Suite

Last Modified on Jun 11, 2020

OnceHub for G Suite is designed specifically for organizations using G Suite. Its special features are the single sign-on with the user's G Suite account, and the automatic connection to the user's Google Calendar.

OnceHub for G Suite is only available to organizations running G Suite, and can only be installed from G Suite Marketplace by the organization's G Suite Administrator.

Once installed, any User on the domain can create the first OnceHub account. That account will become the first Administration account and all Users will be added from that account only. Learn about adding Users

When the first Administration account is created, any User on the domain who tries to create an account without receiving an invitation from the Administration account, will be instructed to ask the Administrator to add them as a User.

Once Users are added and have signed up, they can simply access OnceHub from their Google universal navigation bar or with the Google login for OnceHub.

OnceHub for G Suite uses Google's single sign-on, so it is as secure as your G Suite account. If you're already logged into G Suite, no login is required to access the OnceHub platform.

To install OnceHub for G Suite, ask your G Suite Administrator to visit our OnceHub listing in G Suite Marketplace.
