Categorized items in Master pages [Classic]

You can use categories to organize Event types and Booking pages into intuitive and functional groups. If Event type categories or Booking page categories are visible to Customers, they will show up on your Master page as a separate step. Categories in Master pages help Customers to better understand the options available to them, ensuring that they make the correct selection.

Let's take a look at an example where the chosen scenario is Event types first.

- 1. Event type category selection: First, the Customer is presented with a list of Event type categories. After they select an Event type category, they'll be presented with a list of all the Event types in that category.
- 2. Event type selection: The Customer selects an Event type in that category.

i Note:

Event types that are not within a category will also be displayed in this step, regardless of which category the Customer selected.

- 3. Booking page category selection: After selecting an Event type, the Customer is presented with a list of Booking page categories. After they select a Booking page category, they'll be presented with a list of all the Booking pages in that category.
- 4. Booking page selection: The Customer selects a Booking page in that category.

(i) Note:

Booking pages that are not within a category will also be displayed in this step, regardless of which category the Customer selected.

5. Finally, they'll select a date and time, and fill out a Booking form.
